

Introduction to Youth Participatory Action Research

This workshop will help community members, families and youth understand the basics of participatory action research, in which stakeholders, youth, and service providers collaborate to formulate and answer research questions.

Join us to learn more about:

- What Participatory Action Research (PAR) is
- What makes PAR different from conventional research approaches
- Using research to actively engage youth in problem solving
- How to empower youth to facilitate change in their communities

Friday, November 4th

9:00am-12:00pm
Northwest Auditorium -
Trinity Western University
Langley, BC

Go to [http://introtoyouthparattwu.
eventbrite.ca](http://introtoyouthparattwu.eventbrite.ca) to register for this FREE event as space is limited!

Presenter: Fred Chou, M.A., C.C.C., has worked with youth in Chilliwack and has published two papers on that endeavour. Fred is currently a 3rd year doctoral candidate at UBC, and has also written numerous articles for the Institute of Families and the FORCE Society on Family Smart®.

Co-sponsored by the Langley & Chilliwack Local Action Teams, with funding from the Child & Youth Mental Health and Substance Use Collaborative, in cooperation with the TWU MA Counselling Psychology program

